The newly elected officers of unit 433, American Legion auxiliary were installed Wednesday night, July 1st, at the American Legion hall by Mrs. Nellie Fitzpatrick, past district president of the American Legion auxiliary, and the installing team of the La Jolla unit.

Mrs. Naomi Dick has been elected president; Mrs. Lulu Monticue, 1st vice president; Mrs. Maude Schumacher, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Florence Reynolds, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Marian Sharpe, chaplain; Mrs. Pauline Vaterlaus, sergeant at arms; Mrs. Minnie Walther, historian. The executive committee consists of Mrs. Sadie Sweeney, Mrs. Grace Chadwick and Mrs. Clara Lindenmeier.

Refreshments were served after the installation.

A lovely bouquet of flowers was sent to Mrs. Sadie Sweeney, past secretary and treasurer, who is ill and unable to attend the meeting.

Young Attorney In Race For Assembly

Vincent Whelan, widely known young attorney and brother of district attorney, Thomas Whelan, today announced that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the State Assembly from the 78th district.

Whelan refers to his legal training and experience as among his qualifications for the office. He said that if elected he would use his best efforts to establish a compulsory course in public safety as part of the school curriculum, this being designed to reduce the mounting toll of accidents. Further highway improvements in the county, including straightening of the highway from Oceanside to the county line, and elimination of waste and extravagance in conducting the state's business, are among other principals he advocates.

Whelan was a member of the first Roosevelt-for-President committee in San Diego in 1932, and is now serving his fourth year as a member of the Democratic County Central Committee.

Connie Horton, barber at 5038 Newport avenue, sold his interest in the shop to George Cox and has gone to La Mesa to engage in the same line.

To Build Fire-Life Guard Station at Ocean Beach

Reports from the city hall the past ten days are to the effect that city manager and council are finally taking some notice of the beach sections and are providing three to four times the life guard service we have formerly been supplied.

Of special interest to Ocean Beach is the word that the city has decided to build a combination fire, comfort and life guard station near the junction of Santa Monica and Abbott streets, the plan being approved by the council and recommended by the city manager.

City Manager Flack estimated the cost at $4,000 of which the city was to put up $2,000 and the WPA a like amount. A life guard tower is one of the features proposed.

Roosevelt Meeting Has Large Attendance

The On-With-Roosevelt meeting held Thursday evening of last week was well attended and presided over by A. R. Fling, chairman of the local committee.

Tom McLoughlin, candidate for assemblyman from the 80th district, was the first speaker. He said it was 38 years since California had had a Democratic governor and also gave a synopsis of nineteen test votes in last session of the California legislature which showed the Democratic members regularly voting for progressive measures.

Y. A. Jacques, attorney, candidate for the Justice Court, criticized the Supreme Court for its majority report on the minimum wage law decision rendered recently, and his plea was well received by his audience. He said he was making his bid for office as progressive in his ideas and hoped to be elected on that platform.

Judge J. J. Brennan, candidate for the Congress of the United States, was the principal speaker of the evening giving the history of the Constitution. He said only seven rules were originally set down but that since its adoption 25,000 laws had been enacted by Congress, 25 per cent of these under the last twelve years of Republican administration and that many of these had been declared unconstitutional. He stated that our presidents had been criticized for making the Louisiana purchase, the buying of Alaska, and many other acts, but that as time went by these were proven to have been deeds of great foresight.

Judge Brennan also stated there was a six billion dollar deficit of the U.S. treasury when President Hoover went out of office but none of that money had gone to save anyone's home or anyone's farm, or give relief to the ordinary citizen.

He urged the united support of President Roosevelt and all Democratic candidates at the primary in August and the general election in November.

POINT LOMA HIGH LOSES VALUABLE INSTRUCTOR

Myron B. Green, instructor of music at Point Loma high school for several years past, has accepted a similar post at Hoover high in east San Diego.

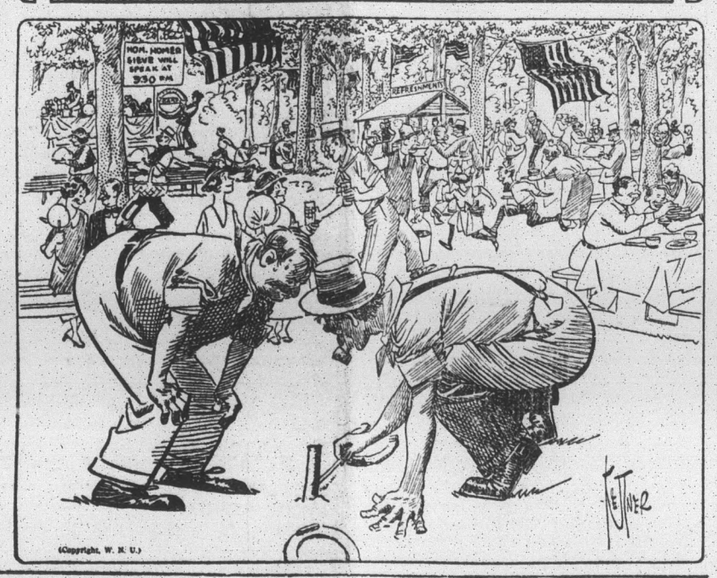

Local students and their parents will be sorry to see Mr. Green leave Point Loma for he has brought the musical abilities of the school choruses and standards to a remarkably high point during his stewardship.

This efficient instructor until the last semester had charge of both orchestra and glee clubs but with more than 1200 students at the school during the last year he was given an assistant who took full charge of the orchestra, leaving the vocal instruction to Mr. Green and he has developed this part in a most satisfactor manner to the faculty and to the student and parent.

Point Loma's loss, as the old saying goes, will be Hoover's gain.

We wish you all kinds of good luck in your new location, Mr. Green.

The Fourth of July

Eddy Enters Race For Office He Holds

Crowell D. Eddy, county assessor, appointed February 5, last to fill the vacancy pending the next general election, has formally announced his candidacy for election to the unexpired term of county assessor.

In entering the lists as a candidate he has yielded to the wishes of the San Diego county voters expressed in their county charter when they provided that an appointee to an elective office could serve only until the next county election. This, despite the State law which provides that an appointee will serve the entire duration of the unexpired term.

To Mr. Eddy, his work as county assessor is but another step in the humanitarian and public service to which he has dedicated his life.

A former Baptist minister, he entered the service of San Diego county in 1926 when he was elected to the California State assembly where he represented his district until 1930 after which he was appointed postmaster of National City where for many years he has lived and operated an avocado and citrus nursery.

In this responsible post, during a period when it was necessary that he work with almost every governmental agency, he distinguished himself and his work in providing National City with one of the most efficient postoffice administrations it had ever had.

Leaving the postal service in September, 1934, he became executive secretary of the San Diego county farm bureau, in which position he served until February 5, of this year, when the board of County Supervisors telephoned him at his office and told him he had been appointed and asked him if it would be possible for him to take over the office the next morning.

At a hastily called meeting of the board of directors of the Farm Bureau he was granted a leave of absence to serve the county as a whole and immediately re-organized the administration of this highly technical office with three objectives in view;

Equitable assessment.

Courteous treatment of every man and woman who visits the office.

Orderly, business-like administration.

"In offering my candidacy to the voters of San Diego county, I feel that I am but asking them to confirm or reject the appointment made by the board of Supervisors", he said.

The opportunity for confirmation or rejection of that appointment will come August 25 when San Diego county men and women vote in the primary election.

No Band Concert Here Until July 11

There will be no band concert Saturday this week by the WPA band at Ocean Beach for the band is to have a week's vacation during the completion of new arrangement which are to start on July 6.

The News is informed, however, that concerts will commence again on July 11, and previous to that date the band stand now located at Cable and Newport streets, will be taken to the foot of Newport Ave. nearer the beach.

Don'ts To Remember When On The Beach

Don't swim near rip tides; they are dangerous. Learn from lifeguards how to recognize them and combat their effects.

Don't overestimate your swimming ability, especially during the early part of the season. Your physical condition may not be as good as it was last year.

Don't attempt to swim while under the influence of liquor. Many persons are drowned as a result.

Don't bathe immediately after eating; cramps, temporarily paralyzing in their effect, frequently result.

Don't bathe in remote places; remain near a lifeguard's position.

Don't swim near pilings or piers; they have dangerous currents and sharp cutting edges.

Don't call for assistance unless actually in trouble; but if you do need help, don't hesitate to call immediately.

Don't throw sharp glass, tin cans or other dangerous refuse on the beach; help to keep it clean.

Don't dive into unfamiliar water; explore it thoroughly in advance.

Don't make long-distance swims unaccompanied by a strong swimmer or a boat.

Don't use inflated play apparatus in the surf, such as a tire tube, water wings and floats. You may be carried out to sea and be unable to return.

Don't take dares in the ocean.

Don't go to the assistance of a lifeguard unless he asks for it; he might have to rescue you as well as the original victim.

Don't attempt to acquire a quick tan; painful sunburn usually is the result.

Judge Clarence Harden In Re-Election Race

Judge Clarence Harden, presiding justice of the Superior Court bench, today announced his candidacy for re-election to the judicial post he has occupied for six years.

"It is with pleasure that I announce my candidacy for reelection to the office of judge of the Superior Court," he said. "I aspired to this position for many years and sought by hard work to qualify myself for it. I have served now for almost six years.

"During that time I served four months as justice pro tem. of the District Court of Appeals, under appointment of the judicial council. Before my election to the bench, I practiced law for seventeen years before the courts of San Diego county, the Appellate Courts of California, and the Federal courts of this district. My record as a citizen and an official is, therefore, before the people.

"A candidate for judicial office can hardly have a platform. The duty of a judge is to administer justice in the cases brought before him. He should be courteous, patient and fair; he should be learned in the law and have the moral courage to decide according to the law and the evidence.

"I fully realize how important to the people is the honest and efficient administration of justice. If re-elected, I shall continue to devote to the office my best efforts and shall spare neither time nor labor in the performance of its duties."

MAJOR BOWERS IN ASSEMBLY RACE

Major Geo. B. Bowers, former Assemblyman of the 78th district is again a candidate for that office in which he served two terms.

Bowers' record as a legislator among other achievements includes participation in the solution of such civic problems as:

An Act to limit the amount of special assessments and provide a majority protest to future muddles such as the Mattoon Act, which also incidentally he aided to repeal.

Assurance of San Diego participation in Boulder dam water and power if locally desired.

Water resources and flood control survey by the State.

Law restricting alien fishermen.

Laws to protect San Diego beaches.

The 11th Highway district.

Initiated movement which made San Diego Teachers' College a State college.

"My request for public support of my candidacy" Bowers stated "is not based solely upon my past Legislative record and constant activity in civic affairs, but rather on my future plans.

"My policy will be to cooperate with state, city and county officials so that San Diego may receive its full share of benefits, and to work to accomplish the following:

"To lighten tax burdens without loss of Government efficiency, and sponsor no public improvement unless corresponding tax reductions or increased taxable values can be shown.

"To sponsor an adequate old age pension to conform and expand with any Federal plan that may be enacted in the future.

"To erect National Guard and Naval Militia Armories and a State office building.

"To hold oral State Civil Service examinations here, saving San Diegans $10,000 annually.

"To continue efforts to insure San Diego river flood control through Federal aid, including jetties at the outlet at Ocean Beach.

"To incorporate a Marine Zoo for Mission bay and provide a superintendent-engineer for the Bay Park.

"To continue efforts for improvement of San Diego beaches and aid any project designed to halt erosion at Sunset Cliffs.

"To cooperate with San Diego Harbor Commission in forwarding building and legislative project.

"To aid the citizens of Ocean Beach in their fight for a fishing pier, the opening of the Mission Valley road to the beaches and the paving of West Point Loma Blvd.

"To cooperate with the authorities to hasten settlement of the Mattoon Act assessment districts.

"As your assemblyman I shall endeavor to fulfill my plans, as above stated, and surpass my former record."

SYNOPSIS

Leila Seton, young and beautiful, and an expert on paintings, is commissioned to go over the collection of paintings in the home of the wealthy Kellers in New York, where a party is in progress. From her window she witnesses a man in another room strike a woman. Shortly after Mrs. Keller sends up word, asking her to join the party at dinner. Leila hastily dresses and goes down. She is seated between Mr. Deck, a critic, and Monty Mitchell, a noted lawyer. Introductions follow. There are Mr. Harriden, Miss Letty Van Alstyn, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Watkins and Prince and Princess Rancini, guests. Leila finds she is taking the place of Nora Harriden. Dan Harriden leaves the table, and Mitchell explains he has gone up to see how his wife's headache is. He returns shortly. Deck, saying he must put in a call, leaves. Upon his return, he begs Leila to secretly take a message to Nora "to take no steps until I see you." Leila consents. Leila finds the Harriden rooms empty and so informs Deck. Coming out she passes Letty. Harriden asks Princess Rancini to run up and see his wife. The princess reports the absence of Nora. Harriden admits that he had a row, and believes she is spitefully hiding. Letty tells of seeing Leila come from the room. Leila accuses Harriden of having struck his wife. This Harriden denies. From the Harridens' window Leila sees what proves to be Nora's lifeless body. A ghastly head wound caused death. Dan says she was lying on her bed when he went to dinner, and when he ran up later the room was dark. Thinking she was asleep, he left without seeing her. Mrs. Keller comes upon a pool of blood in the closet. A diamond chain is missing. Donahey, police inspector, questions the guests. Harriden brands Leila's story of seeing a man strike a woman a lie. Anson, a maid, tells of seeing Deck outside the Harriden door. Desk says he passed by in seeking a lost handkerchief. Elkins, a servant, tells of overhearing Deck threaten Mrs. Harriden earlier in the day. Deck explains he was intoxicated and does not remember. That night Leila awakes with the impression of some one being in her room and then hears steps in the hall. Believing she was mistaken, she does not report it.

To make conversation I asked him if he had known Mrs. Harriden well. I knew that he had landed only a day or so ago, but I thought they had probably met abroad.

Instantly his eyes changed. He looked at me narrowly as if questioning what I meant. "One has met—but who knows anybody?" he said, with his shrug.

I said, "Who, indeed?" in his own Italian, and at that he changed back to smiles and began to spout Italian at me. I felt so eager for some one human to talk to that I told him why I was there, and he declared that he must see that famous gallery, he must learn something of the ways of detecting frauds. He would go with me to that gallery, he said.

It was when I was saying, "But when could we go?" that his wife glided to my side. I hadn't heard her come up nor had he, and his face was a comical study in boyish-looking guilt.

Aloofly, the Princess Rancini murmured, "I think you are wanted by the police. They asked me to tell you to come," and began to talk in wearied tones to her husband as if I was dismissed.

"I Think You Are Wanted by the Police."

I thought, furiously, that she was one of the most hateful women I had ever met.

I didn't take time to wonder what Donahey wanted now; I just went straight to the table where he was standing, with a little group about him. There was a man in uniform, I noticed, and the Kellers with Dan Harriden and Monty Mitchell. In the midst of my "Good mornings," my eyes fell on a dress lying over a chair, its folds trailing—my frock, the ice blue satin frock I had worn the night before.

I didn't have time for anything but astonishment when Donahey spoke, measuredly. "You recognize this dress, Miss Seton?"

"Of course. It's mine." For no reason that I could name or help my voice sounded defiant.

He went forward and lifted a fold of blue satin, disclosing the underside of the skirt. There, pinned by a safety pin, hung a little sort of bag, like a tied-up handkerchief.

"And you recognize this?"

"Why no—what is it?" I stammered.

With slow deliberation he undid the pin, and let the cloth drop in one of his palms. From the opening folds his thick fingers picked up a chain strung with glittering stones. He stared at it, then dangled it before us all. It was a chain of diamonds—yellow diamonds.

CHAPTER VI

I was too astonished to speak; I stood staring at the dress, then a recollection of the last time I had seen it, lying over a chair in my room near the door, swept my mind back, in a flash, to those noises in the night. I blurted, "Why, there was some one then—there was some one there!"

Hurriedly I tried to tell them about it, about my waking and my fright, and my conclusion that it was just the steps of a policeman moving about outside, and as I stammered out the story I saw disbelief in their faces and could hardly blame them for it. Oh, the idiot that I had been not to have phoned some one at once!

It seemed too mad to put into words. Carefully I controlled my voice which was shaking with excitement and said stiffly, "But you must see what this means—that the one who stole those diamonds was in this house last night—that he must be still hiding about—"

"We've combed this house with a fine tooth comb, young lady," said Donahey, "and there's no one in it except those whose names we know. Nobody has got out of here during the night or this morning. It's been surrounded."

"Then he's here now," I said.

"He's here, all right," Donahey echoed with ominous finality. "And he isn't going to get away."

Monty Mitchell said thoughtfully, "A pity you have let this find be known. The thief, whoever he was, might have meant to hide the stones only till the first flurry of searching died down. He could feel reasonably sure that Miss Seton wouldn't be wearing that dress tonight, too light and gay and all that, so he thought he had a good temporary hiding place."

I was passionately grateful for his words and for his coming and standing by me, as if casually.

"Why do you imagine he chose that dress for a hiding place?" asked Donahey very slowly as if picking his way.

"The position of the room, for one thing," said Mitchell. "It was near the art gallery, and its door was visible from the gallery door—later on the gallery would have been a good lurking place till he saw his chance to nip in and retrieve the jewels. I rather think he meant to retrieve them," he went on thoughtfully, screwing up his black eyebrows, "for they are too valuable to ignore. . . . You said the dress was right by the door, didn't you?" he asked of me.

"On a chair by the door," I repeated.

Donahey glanced up and said, "Does it strike you as feasible, Mr. Mitchell, that any one who committed murder for those diamonds would take a chance on losing them afterwards?"

"Very feasible," said Mitchell, "if he found the trail getting too hot. . . . But you don't know that the one who hid them was the one who did the murder."

"No?" said Donahey.

"No," said Mitchell, very firmly. "Some one may very well have found them afterwards and just not mentioned it. And then he got cold feet for fear of being suspected of the murder and so got rid of them in this hiding place."

"Sounds far-fetched," was Donahey's comment. "What's the matter with this girl's hiding them herself?"

It was out in the open at last, the accusation.

"Well, there are lots of matters against that," said Mitchell in a very reasonable tone. "One is that Miss Seton isn't the sort of person who goes about hiding diamonds."

The inspector grunted. "Somebody hid 'em. Somebody 'got 'em off Mrs. Harriden's neck. And you can't deny that this girl had the opportunity when she went upstairs, after dinner—"

"The room was empty when I entered it," I flashed at him.

"That's what you say."

"Anson must know that she made the room before I came up," I said. "The Princess Rancini was up just after me, and she found the room ready for the night. There wasn't time, between our visits—"

I couldn't go on.

Donahey's thoughts were following mine. "No-no, there wasn't time," he conceded equably. "Not for the killing. . . . But there'd have been time enough for you to pick up the shiners," he added. "You might have found them lying about."

I stared back at him and hardiness came to me. "You are very wrong," I said curtly, "and you are wasting time you ought to spend in finding the real criminal."

"Anybody might pick up diamonds," said Donahey, loking me over with his experienced eyes.

"But why would they be left there?" I went on, trying desperately to be lucid. "Why would any one who killed Mrs. Harriden for her jewels go away and leave them behind?"

"He might not have killed her for her jewels," Donahey pointed out. "Then you came along and did the finding—"

Harriden's voice overtook his. Harriden had been standing there, watching, his eyes as hard as flints now, suddenly, he intervened. "She was Deck's confederate," he said. "The thing's clear enough. He did the killing. It may have been for—for reasons of his own—" the harsh voice grated over the words then went indomitably on, "but certainly cupidity played a part afterwards. He took that chain. Stuffed it into his pocket and went down to diner. Passed it to Miss Seton at the table. She went upstairs to hide them in her gown."

"But why, then, would she go into your wife's room?" Mitchell wanted to know.

"There's a diamond missing," said Harriden grimly. "The big one. He sent her up to look for it. She made up this cock-and-bull story of a slapped cheek as an excuse."

There was a dreadful silence. Harriden went on, "She may have found it, and she may not. Deck may have the diamond on him. He may have been holding out on her."

I said in a low voice, "This would all be funny if it wasn't so terrible," and Mr. Keller murmured uneasily, "You're going pretty far in your accusations, Dan. . . ."

"You were meeting Mr. Deck in the gallery just before dinner," Donahey reminded me. "Now how about that?"

"I told you that was sheer accident."

Mitchell created a brisk diversion. Mr. Harriden's feelings are really not evidence. Now that cloth those diamonds were tied up in is evidence. May I see it?"

Donahey handed it over. It was a piece of linen, a fine hemstitched handkerchief, with one corner torn out as if to remove a monogram. The cloth was crumpled and faintly stained.

Mitchell examined it, then passed it to me. "What do you make of it, Miss Seton?"

"It's been washed," I said, trying hard to speak normally. "Washed and dried. Those brown marks look like radiator marks."

"Washed, by Jimmy!" Mitchell was alert as a terrier. "Now what do you think was washed out, Mr. Inspector?"

We all knew the answer to that—blood.

"Your man going over the handkerchiefs in this house?" Mitchell rather sharply asked of Donahey, and Donahey passed on his disrelish at the rebuke in the bruskness of his tone to his subordinate, as he gave the order. Harriden said, belligerently, that probably the man hadn't used his own.

"Then why tear out the monogram?" Mitchell retorted. His keen eyes, behind their glasses, studied Harriden almost banteringly. "Trying to discredit the clue, in case the hankies don't match?"

Harriden reddened. "I'm not making a secret of what I think," he said harshly. "Deck threatened my wife, and he carried out his threats. And, by God, I'll bring it home to him! As for this girl, who was his accomplice—"

"Don't let your feelings get the better of your judgment," the lawyer advised drily. "You've every reason to be sore as hell, but don't get a complex, and try to fit the facts to it."

He swung around to Donahey. "Let me know when you have that hanky report, and I'll be back for it. Both of us will," and his arm on my arm turned me about with him and headed me toward the door. "Let's go and talk this over," he said to me.

His tone was so friendly, so intimate, that I was touched to the quick; I had never needed a friend more in my life.

Together we went out into the hall and he led the way to a deep cushioned couch and proceeded to light cigarettes for us both. "Now this is very interesting," he said cheerfully. "I wonder if you have any chemicals with you that could test those spots on that handkerchief? Find out if they are rust or blood?"

At my assent he said, "Good!" heartily and then, "I'll get Donahey to give you the handkerchief. He'll probably send a guard with it. It's pretty important evidence—about all we have so far."

"Harriden's down on Deck like hell."

I ventured, "Was Deck—was Mrs. Harriden—?"

"Oh, her infatuation was notorious. I don't know the ins and outs—I wasn't one of their intimates. I never liked her."

"I don't see how you could resist her," I said honestly and thought of her dark, amazing eyes, her slim seductive loveliness.

"Oh, a man could lose his head over her—Deck did, apparently—but I don't lose my head," the young lawyer informed me. "She wasn't likable."

And I thought of Nora Harriden's dead mouth, with its sharp, cruel edges. . .

"Whatever they were quarreling about," Mitchell went on, "I don't see the motive for killing her. He may have been cooling to her and going after some other girl, and she was threating to tell the girl—but that's not motive enough for murder.

"All that they have against you now is that you had the opportunity to pick up the chain and that it was found, this morning, secreted in your dress. It was secreted in a handkerchief whose identifying marks were torn out, that had been recently washed and dried without benefit of ironing, and the implication from that is that the handkerchief might have been bloodstained. Now, could Deck have passed you the chain at dinner in that very handkerchief? Going into the horrid details we have to imagine Deck thrusting Nora into the closet, wiping his hands on his hanky, or wiping off the point of whatever he jabbed her with, and then promptly washing out the aforesaid hanky and drying it on the radiator. Then he put Nora out the window, snatched his hanky off the radiator, and came down to dinner . . . Yes, it just could have been done. . . . Or he could have done the hanky washing and the consignment of the gems to you later in the evening, while all the bustle was going on."

"I hardly saw him—"

"Who's to prove that? What I'm examining is the strength of the possible case against you. How can you prove that you didn't know him in New York? You should never have let yourself meet him accidentally in that gallery! . . . I'm not saying, mind you, that you couldn't get a jury to believe that the chain was planted on you, as you say, but you don't want to get into all that if you can be kept out. And the best way to keep you out is to find who did the planting."

I nodded, rather helplessly.

"If the jury believes it was Alan Deck, they will at least look into the case against you as an accomplice. If the jury is shown that it is not Deck, there isn't any accomplice case against you."

"Yes, but suppose they do find the murderer — and he doesn't confess to stealing the diamonds. How am I going to prove that I didn't find the chain in the room when I came up and hide it myself?"

"You wouldn't have the blood-stained hanky to hide it in, silly—if those stains prove to be blood."

This was our chance, he said, to look into the situation. Rapidly, incisively, he spread that house-party out like a pack of cards about me. The servants he swept away with one conclusive gesture. He had been going into that all morning; every one was a retainer tried and true, some inherited from the elder Kellers, and almost all of long standing here. Elkins, the most recent addition, had impeccable references. And every one of them was downstairs after eight o'clock, except the maids busy with the rooms.

Then he dealt out the guests. It had to be some one who came along after eight o'clock when both Harriden and Anson had seen Mrs. Harriden on her bed. The thing was to discover in what order they had come down to dinner, and he had been working on that, he told me. The Kellers had been down first, then Mrs. Crane, and after that there was a confusion of accounts. The Watkins said they had come down and sat out in the lounge behind the long entrance hall before they registered among the others.

"Susy Watkins might have something against Nora Harriden," he said. "She was crazy over Deck, once upon a time, but he couldn't see her for Nora. But that was the moment to put Nora out of business and not now."

He went on to speak of the Rancinis. "They're just landed — he'd hardly have cooked up an infernal passion for Nora so soon."

"But he knew her abroad," I told him.

"A European past! That needs scrutiny. He might have been the gent in the room with Nora about seven-thirty. He might have slipped in before Dan came up, and they had that fracas that you saw."

I objected. "But he couldn't have killed her then—she was seen afterwards at eight."

"He might have popped in again after Dan had gone down. The princess admitted they didn't go down together. She says he was late."

"It might have been the princess herself," I said. "She might have found out that he'd been in Mrs. Harriden's room and had one of those spasms of jealousy."

"But there were no signs of jealousy downstairs. Murder seems too serious for a first explosion. . . . Of course, she might not have meant murder—just meant to speak her mind about the prince's visit. And then, Nora, being in a state of nerves, tried to thrust her out and she caught up something handy—they haven't been able to find out yet what it was done with. But we'll take that up later. . . . Now you'd say the Rancinis, one or the other, might have been the one?"

I couldn't imagine it of them. But then, I couldn't imagine it of any one. To murder, I thought, one would have to be literally possessed by fury.

I asked a really sensible question. "What time was Harriden down? Before or after the Rancinis?"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Fourth Time for Holiday Parties

THE Fourth of July, the most important holiday of the summer season, while still of great historical importance, is celebrated in a very nonchalant and sane manner. To the majority of persons it means a lazy day spent in the country or at the beach, with dinner served picnic-fashion, under the open sky. Or, another popular method of celebration, writes Ethel K. Ehlen in the Detroit News, is to invite a few friends in for luncheon, cocktails or dinner—very informal and served on the porch or terrace.

Buffet service continues in popularity, and is equally suitable for entertaining in town or country. Even a picnic menu may go buffet style these days, and it is a very satisfactory manner of service. If this version is selected for celebration in the country or at the beach, paper table cloths, dishes, spoons and forks, simplify matters considerably. And, the setting may be just as attractive as that in which the conventional china and silver are used. A red, white and blue color scheme may be easily arranged, as patriotic appointments in a number of different versions are available.

If the hostess desires something a bit more formal in character, there is a red satin cannon center-piece, which may be filled with surprise favors, and red satin firecrackers as candy or salted nut containers.

For the children's Fourth of July party, red, white and blue snappers and a table centerpiece consisting of a blue patent leather bag, tied with the patriotic tri-colors and filled with surprise packages wrapped in cellophane, is timely and a little unusual. This clever bag of favors is also nice as a gift to a small child.

Nautical decorations in red, white and blue are cool and summery looking and an innovation in patriotic ensembling for the table. Frosted beverages may be invitingly served in tall crystal glasses decorated with navy blue anchors, ships, and the like, the red note being supplied by the cherry garnish, and repeated in the tiny sandwiches which may be cut in the shape of a firecracker. Ice cream and ices, so important in the American summer menu, will be available for the important holiday in suitable color schemes and designs, and may be packed in dry ice for carrying to the beach as dessert for the picnic lunch.

Numerous handy equipment is available for both cooking under the open sky, or adequately packing picnic menus which have been prepared at home. One of the additions to this already large family is a miniature stove, so constructed that paper may be used as the fuel for the fire; or, twigs for such things as steak and other foods that require a greater amount of heat. Wicker picnic baskets, with or without insulating qualities; long-handle forks, broilers and frying pans; thermos jugs and bottles; all help to make picnicking more delightful.

A perfectly grand kind of picnic basket is a kit of leather, simulated leather or wicker, completely equipped with utensils, china and cutlery, and plenty of separate compartments for packing sandwiches, salads, relishes, desserts and so on.

Cellophane is a wonderful picnic aid for wrapping practically any kind of picnic edibles. Paper table mats, table cloths and napkins, are fashioned of white and designed in such a manner they have the appearance of linen. Paper cups have gone more attractive and practical too—late versions are equipped with handles, which makes drinking an easier process. They, as well as plates and serving dishes are patterned after china, having a smart gold band as the effective decorative medium.

The Fourth of July celebration in the modern manner may take the form of a picnic in quite primitive fashion, or in a more pretentious style, like that just described. Or, if one does not yearn for the open road and sunny beach, the holiday may be gloriously celebrated with informal entertaining at home, with appointments and decorations in patriotic themes. Any of these interpretations are timely and in keeping with the modern scheme of things.

Augustin of Song Fame Won Acclaim in a Unique Way

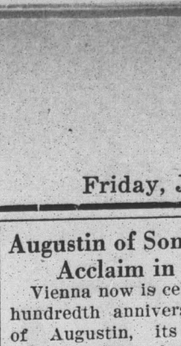

Vienna now is celebrating the four-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Augustin, its famous citizen whose memory has long been commemorated by statues, festivities and the song "Ach, Du Lieber Augustin." Augustin won his fame in a unique way. One night while intoxicated he fell asleep in an alley among bodies of victims of the plague. At dawn he awakened in a cemetery trench and the startled gravediggers spread the rumor he had "arisen from the dead."—Collier's Weekly.

Marshal Pilsudski's Heart Buried at Vilna

IT WAS the last wish of Marshal Pilsudski, "Maker of Modern Poland," that his heart be buried next to his mother's grave in Vilna. The wish was carried out on the day of mourning for Poland's national hero. In this picture at Rossa cemetery Madame Pilsudski is holding the casket containing the marshal's heart.

THE HEART HAS NEEDS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHAT is the profit of all our toil?
We need the grain of the fertile soil,
But a man will find, as the road he goes,
That now and then he will need a rose.

We need the corn of the rolling land,
But now and then we shall need a hand;
To the heart of man there will come an hour
When he needs the sight of a blooming flow'r.

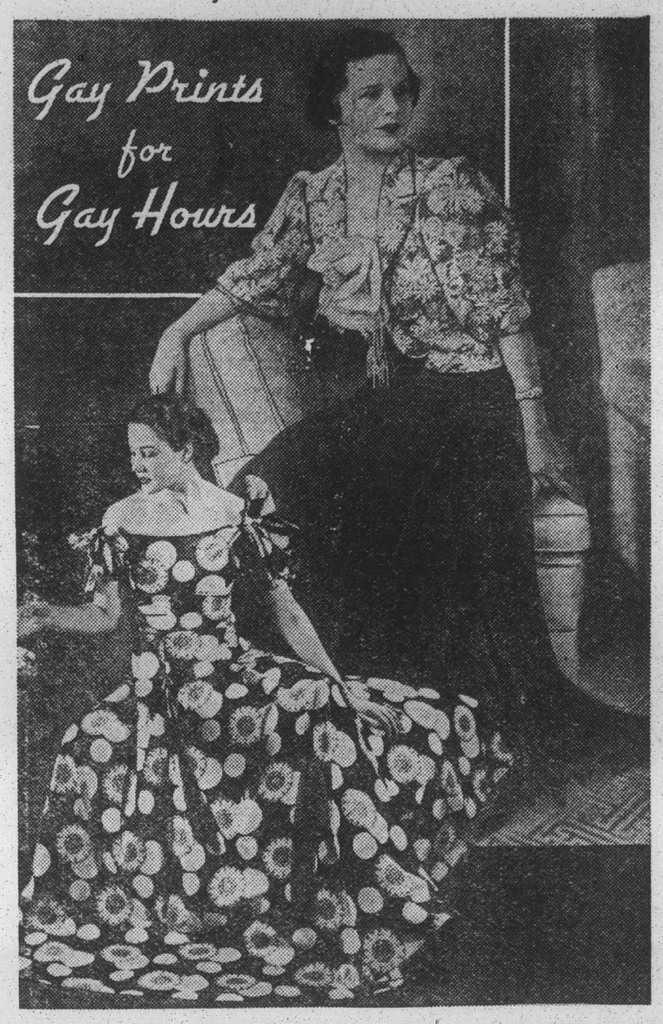

Yes, God has given us rose and grain,
And I think his purpose is mighty plain:
Whatever our aim, our wish, our goal,
We must feed the body, but feed the soul.

For, after all, it's the friends we make,
And the joy we share, and the joy we take,
And the good we do, and the good that's given,
That make the earth seem a bit like heaven!

Glazed Chintz and Quilted Print

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COME to the party frocked in gay glazed chintz and you will look not only charming but "new" as to fashion. What! Glazed chintz going formal after all these years it has been serving as material for sofa cushions on summer verandas, as bathroom curtains and as general utility household hangings? Yes'm, it's not only true but what's more, glazed chintz is simply perfect in the new role it is playing as high-style fabric for evening gowns and wraps. Try a gown of glazed chintz, you'll love it.

You will be perfectly safe and sane in choosing a dress of glazed chintz for the merits of this charming material have been recognized by leading Paris couturiers. Worth fashions an evening redingote with big sleeves of this cotton, the patterning of which accents huge gorgeous flowers.

See in the picture the lady seated in the foreground. The adorable gown she wears is fashioned of gleaming glazed chintz or cired chintz, as some call it. The daring astral patterning is done in vivid coloring on a dark background. Bows of self-fabric accent the off-shoulder silhouette. The Alix skirt is cut with a very full circular flare in last-minute fashion.

It is nothing short of a revelation the way cottons of every description are coming to the fore in a formal way. Designers are fearless in appropriating the most ordinary of household cottons for their use in creating fashionable apparel. For instance, clever coats to wear this summer, are being made of bed-spread pique and they are that good-looking you will be wanting one at first sight.

As to printed linens and cottons, especially printed piques and cottons that look like linens, and linens that look like cottons and a host of other eye-catching wash fabrics, they are scoring a triumph in the most exclusive circles of high fashion. Some of the printed linen-looking cottons are gorgeously patterned with widely spaced florals that splash color unsparingly throughout their design.

If you haven't seen them already, there is a real thrill waiting you in the summer swaggers and jackets that are fashioned of hand-quilted gay print. The bright field flowers in the jacket worn over the black silk organdie, pictured, look as if they could be picked. Hand-quilting outlines each flower in this very beautiful silk shantung print. The enormous bouquet is composed of pink and yellow silk organdie flowers.

Quilting is being done in a great way this season. If you want to express the "last word" in a daytime jacket or coatee to wear over summer dresses, make it of black or navy satin that has been hand quilted in decorative design.

Getting back to the subject of cotton fabrics the junior girls are having the happiest sort of a time wearing dresses of gingham that are made quite formally for parties. As to organdies, dotted swisses, cotton nets, especially pointed 'esprit, printed voiles and a whole list of fascinating sheers, they are cutting a big splurge this season in "society"—made up as painstakingly as silks or velvets.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

WHAT BOBBY COON AND BILLY MINK DID

BOBBY COON and Billy Mink sat on an old log on the bank of the Laughing Brook and talked over the traps Billy Mink had discovered and what should be done about them.

"Of course," said Billy Mink, "you and I are safe enough. We know exactly where those traps are and we are not going to be so foolish as to get caught in one of them. But there are others who travel up and down the Laughing Brook who might not discover the traps until too late."

Bobby Coon nodded. "Just what I was thinking," said he. "But for you, Billy Mink, I would be in that trap down there this very minute. It was stupid of me not to have suspected that the little opening in that fence was left purposely to tempt whoever came along to go through it instead of taking the trouble to climb that steep bank and go around the fence. There may be others just as stupid. We ought to do something about it, but what can we do?"

"Are you afraid to go near that trap?" demanded Billy.

Bobby scratched his head thoughtfully. "How near?" he asked.

"Near enough to get your paw under it," replied Billy.

"I don't know," replied Bobby. "What good will that do?"

"Well, you see," replied Billy, "that trap is set right in the middle of that little opening and it has been covered with wet, dead leaves. Now I know something about traps. I've seen a lot of them in my day. If anyone should step on those wet leaves, two steel jaws would snap up and grab him by the leg. But those steel jaws always snap up. They can't snap the other way. If your paw is underneath the trap there is no danger. By doing this you can lift that trap up so that it will no longer be covered with those dead leaves, and whoever comes along will see it. It isn't safe to try to pull the leaves off of it because you might get caught doing it. If you will do that to the trap on this side I will do the same thing to the trap on the other side of the Laughing Brook. If you're afraid, just say so, and I'll take care of both traps."

Now Bobby Coon was afraid because, you see, he had never had anything to do with traps. But he wasn't willing to own up that he was afraid. He knew that if he showed that he was afraid he never would hear the end of it, for Billy Mink would be sure to tell everybody he knew. He thought the matter over for a few minutes and then grunted: "I guess if you can do it, I can."

"All right, let's get busy!" cried Billy Mink, jumping up. "I don't want to spend the rest of the night sitting around here."

So Billy Mink swam across the Laughing Brook, and Bobby Coon slowly shuffled along on his side down toward the little fence where the trap was set.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

THREE GOOD RECIPES

HERE is a nice relish which may be made in any season and is especially good with fowl:

Relish Salad.

Pour two cupfuls of boiling water over a package of lemon gelatin, stir thoroughly until dissolved. Add one cupful of chopped cabbage, one-half cupful each of chopped celery and stuffed olives, one-fourth teaspoonful each of paprika and salt, two tablespoonfuls each of sugar, vinegar and chopped pickles. Cool before adding the vegetables but the seasonings may be added to the gelatin at once. Set away to mold. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Date Cake.

This is a moist, nice cake: Pour one cupful of boiling water over two-thirds of a cupful of dates and cook slowly one minute. Stir constantly. Beat one egg and add one cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of nuts, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg, two and one-third cupfuls of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat both mixtures together two minutes. Pour into a loaf pan and bake forty minutes. Line the pan with waxed paper.

Stir buttered bread crumbs into a lemon filling and use for dessert. It takes the place of lemon pie and will satisfy those who cannot eat pastry.

Fruit Cake.

This is a good cake to have for any occasion and as it keeps well it may be prepared at any time: Cream one cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar. Add four well beaten eggs, two-thirds of a cupful of orange juice and three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice; beat well for two minutes, then add two teaspoonfuls each of vanilla and cinnamon, one teaspoonful each of salt and cloves, one cupful each of chopped candied pineapple, orange peel and raisins, one-fourth cupful of citron, one-half cupful of almonds finely chopped and four cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful of soda. Bake in two loaf cake pans for one and one-half hours.

THE MAGIC BALLOON

This trick is a real surprise. To start with, the magician holds a top balloon which is red in color. He touches the surface of the balloon with a pin.

Bang! The balloon explodes, but instead of disappearing it remains. The singular thing about it is the color of the balloon. It has changed from red to green.

You need two balloons for this trick. Beforehand, push the green balloon inside the red one. Inflate the green balloon and bind the end. Stretch the mouth of the red balloon and inflate it a trifle more than the green.

The result is an air pocket between the red surface and the green. The pin point explodes the red and its pieces fly from sight behind the green.

PIQUE CULOTTE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A culotte costume's the proper dress for sports wear—by unanimous vote in the world of fashion. For cycling, for tennis and for beach this pleated culotte costume made of sanforized-shrunk fine wale pique will be found most practical and attractive. The beauty of it is that the fabric has been so processed, it carries a guarantee not to shrink or get out of shape when laundered.

Cottons Gain Favor

Each summer proclaims the uprising of some particular cottons. Denim appears in some smartly tailored suits with fitted or swagger jackets. Longcloth familiar in the past for intimate wear and baby dresses has been printed up for daytime, play and evening fashions that are fresh and fashionable.

HAT OF TULLE FOR SUMMER EVENINGS

The diner-out in summer, whether by daylight or dark, needs a hat as well as a gown. And the hats that are first choice this season are those of tulle. There are brimless hats or sailors made of layers of tulle, marked by rounds of stitching and a loose frill formed by the layers at the edge. Some of these stitched tulle hats are made in so many layers that they resemble sports fabric, although the edges are left rough to distinguish them from the tailored materials. The little bonnets made of tulle are particularly delightful for youthful heads when they are worn far back and have a flared-out, short veil from the crown edge. One of the new evening hats seen recently is a tricorne made of novelty or stitched net in brown, or black, or navy, with a splash of bright flowers tacked on at back.

Slide Fasteners in Bright Colors Is Latest in Hats

Slide fasteners are the latest news in spring hat trims.

They appear in bright colors on the tops of several models, making a vivid streak across the crown. A bright red one was used on a navy blue felt hat and a green one on a black chapeau.

Crowns which button up are another innovation. Several new slouch felts have a row of buttons and buttonholes running from the peak of the crown to the edge of the brim.

Shapes of both crowns and brims for new models are distinctive. Crowns are triangular or square, while brims pitch over the right eye and are turned up in back to reveal the coiffure.

Barnyard in Prints

The barnyard is glorified in silk sheer animal prints of white roosters, birds and bunnies instead of traditional dots on black. One smart model features a vest and three pleated tiers of a twin print on a red ground.

A LULL IN THE STORM

The two big political shows are over. Both sides have let fly their opening barrages in the presidential campaign of 1936, and for the moment have ceased firing to let their guns cool before the next assault.

There is a lull while weary politicans get back some of the wind they blew forth over agitated ether waves through half the month of June. Presently they will go into action again, at a gradually increasing tempo until the final showdown in November.

What a stirring, exciting, nerve-wracking thing a presidential election year is! But under all the noise runs a train of solemnity, a vague consciousness that history is in the making, that the future course of the nation is being decided.

One might well ask how a conscientious voter is to get at the truth, see through all the misleading verbiage, the bait, and the political trickery. In California the problem will be complicated by a blanket-sized ballot of State initiatives. And how far these can go in trying to fool the voter, we know from such proposed measures as the Single Tax, trying to hide, as it is, behind the mask of Sales Tax repeal.

Some persons will be deceived by this measure. Others will be deceived by other measures on their own local ballots, in their very own back yards. How, then, are we to wade through the verbiage and really get at the core of what is going on nationally?

If time stood still for half a century to let a man study all the vital questions at stake in this election year, he could scarcely get through the job.

The best we can do is ignore what is obviously claptrap, cling to those basic principles most in harmony with our own, and choose the leaders who seem most capable of carrying them out.

BE CAREFUL THIS YEAR

ON NO OTHER DAY ARE so many people killed or maimed as on the Fourth of July. During the past thirty years more American lives have been lost celebrating our Independence than in acquiring it during the Revolutionary war.

And yet, it is no immutable decree of the gods that each Fourth must be a carnival of death. A little thought and effort, a little care and foresight—and everyone can have just as good a time without suffering the tragedy. We can make it a safe and sane celebration, if we only will.

We know highways will be jammed with picnic-bound autos, with hazardously wide busses carrying crowds of holiday travelers, with motorcycles and even with an unusual number of hikers along the pavement.

We know children like to play with dangerously powerful fireworks and don't understand how these may blind them.

We know that swift rivers, deep lakes, and rolling breakers at the sea shore will carry the overbold to death by drowning.

At this moment, before we ever set out to celebrate, we know all these things. Let's remember them this year.

Be careful this Fourth!

Three years ago, when times began to get better, the "viewers with alarm" and the "prophets of despair" told us it wouldn't last. Since that time the per capita income in America has risen some $100 annually, and industrial production is back to the level of 1927.

One would get the idea from this that the upswing is no mere temporary bulge, but is actually sound at the core. And the other day a report came out that pretty well clinches the argument.

Real Estate values are going up.

Now these seldom move during short-term flurries in the level of economic activity. Yet today in California land values are figured at around six per cent better than at the first of the year, and thirty per cent higher than depression lows.

Moreover, the national survey remarks, "given an increase of ten per cent in general business activity, the continuance of easy money and no material change in real estate taxes, it is reasonable to expect further improvement in real estate values."

And the best part of it is that this means we're advancing soundly all along the line, with our feet on the ground.

It is estimated that more than four billion dollars in diamonds are worn by the American public. This is a "beautiful assertion," but when beautiful deeds become as pronounced as is appreciated of beautiful things, the happiness of the human race will be multiplied a hundredfold. Appreciation of the beautiful, both in nature and in the handiwork of man, is widespread. Yet beautiful conduct is more important than beautiful things. Thoughtfulness, courtesy and kindness mean more than work of art, or expensive jewelry. To make the world a more beautiful place is an obligation resting upon all. This is the important thing to be coveted in life. We are running mad after show, fame, glory, honor, pleasure and financial independence. Then we fear sickness, death, bankruptcy and sometimes disgrace!

The greatest mechanical servant to mankind, today is not far from being the modern typewriter. This is quite an improvement over the old quill pen of Coloniel days. The typewriter has revolutionized business. It has emancipated the working woman from manual labor, which was the only thing available formerly to the woman of moderate education. Visitors to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia in 1876, paid 25 cents to have a brief note typed to mail home to relatives or friend.

HISTORY ESTABLISHMENT OF CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

MISSION SAN FERNANDO REY de ESPANA
September 8, 1797

That zealous padre and devoted friend of Father Junipero Serra, Fr. Juan Crespi appears, in the light of history, to have been gifted with a divine intuition in the matter of unerring judgement in the selection of mission sites. He discovered several of them.

Marching from San Diego to Monterey with Gaspar de Portola's expedition in 1769, Fr. Crespi looked with the eye of a missionary upon the Valley Encino where, on August 5 of that year, Portola camped with his forces. The priest wrote to Father Serra that the site was an excellent one for a Franciscan station.

In August, 1795, Fr. Presidente Fermin de Lasuen dispatched an exploring party from Mission San Buenaventura with instructions to locate a suitable spot for a mission between that point and mission San Gabriel near Los Angeles. This and subsequent parties made exhaustive explorations and recommendations, but in the end it was found that Encino Valley, first come upon by Father Crespi, and named by him Santa Catalina de Bononia de Los Encinos, was the best location. And there Father Lasuen decided to build Mission San Fernando Rey.

The Fr. Presidente of the California missions was 75 years of age in August, 1797, when, with Sergeant Ignacio Olivera and five soldiers, he set out from Mission Santa Barbara to establish San Fernando Rey, fifth in geographic order of the Franciscan missions on El Camino Real, but seventeenth in sequence of founding.

For clarity and conciseness, Father Lasuen's report to Governor Borica on the establishment of SanFernando Rey is a literary gem. It is in the Santa Barbara mission archives and as published by Father Engelhardt, mission historian, is worthy of repetition here. It follows:

VIVA JESUS !

"Senor Governador—My dear Senor: I have the happy satisfaction to communicate to Your Honor that today the solemn feast of the Nativity of Mary Most Holy, on this suitable spot called by the natives Achois Comihabit, between the Missions of San Buenaventura and San Gabriel. with the assistance of the Rev. Fr. Francisco Dumetz, destined for this Mission, of the troops assigned to guard the new establishment, and in the presence of many pagans of both sexes and all ages, who manifested a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction, I blessed the water, the site and a large cross which we planted and venerated. I concluded the function by solemnly singing the Te Deum. Having finished this, in the same little arbor in which I celebrated the holy Sacrifice of the Mass, I blessed the Baptismal Font and then baptized those offered. Thanks be to God! Thus we took possession of the site by dedicating it in honor of the glorious San Fernando, King of Spain, and in this manner beginning the Mission under that sacred title in conformity with the orders of His Excellency, Marquis de Branciforte, Viceroy of New Spain, and with those of Your Honor. God our Lord keep Your Honor in His holy Grace many years. Mission San Fernando. established September 8, 1797. Fr. Fermin Francisco de Lasuen.—To Col. Com. Don Diego Borica."

The unquenchable spirit of Fr. Lasuen is revealed by ancient records which show that in June, 1797, he left Mission San Carlos de Monterey, established the Mission San Jose north of the City of San Jose in what is now Santa Clara county on June 11; marched to a place about 15 miles east of what now is Watsonville and founded the Mission San Juan Bautista on June 24; turned south and on July 25 on El Camino Real established Mission San Miguel, and then trudged on into the south to found San Fernando on September 8.

Fr. Lasuen was proud of the fact that he baptized an Indian child on the same day that he created Mission San Fernando and recorded the event in these words: "So on the spot, in the same little arbor in which I had celebrated the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, I blessed the baptismal water and solemnly baptized Fernando Maria, about four years of ago, called in paganism Coyohuoch, son of Mayso and of Chemayo, from the rancheria of Aichoicominga."

It would appear that the first mission church of San Fernando, a small adobe building, was blessed on November 28, 1797, for on that date there appears in the old mission records a notation that the forty-third baptism took place therein, all other baptisms having been solemnized in the "little arbor."

Construction of buildings at San Fernando, granaries and abodes for the priests, Indians and soldiers proceeded rapidly and in 1799 a new church edifice was erected. In 1804 seventy additional adobe houses for the neophytes were built. The number of converts was almost 1,000. The year 1806 saw the completion of a newer and grander church, more granaries, a tannery and other structures. "The Mission of the Valley," as San Fernando Rey was known, was prospering.

Visitors to San Fernando Rey are greatly impressed by the unique long building 243 feet in length known as the "House of the Fathers." Old records show reports of progress in its construction beginning in December, 1810, and running to December 31, 1822, on which date Father Francisco Gonzales de Ibarra reported its completion after twelve years labor.

Poor Father Ibarra! The story of his devotion to San Fernando Rey and its Indians is a pathetic one He saw the mission in its wonderful golden years and during the evil years of its deepest despair preceding its confiscation by Governor Pio Pico.

The revolt of Mexico against Spain starting in 1810 brought misery to San Fernando Rey as well as the other California missions. From 1811 until the end of the missionary period, San Fernando was compelled to support the idle soldiers and their families furnishing food, clothing and pay. From 1822 to 1827, San Fernando contributed to the Santa Barbara presidio alone supplies amounting to $21,203.

All money and supplies for the military had to be produced by the Indians of the mission and payment was enforced over the vigorous protests of Father Ibarra. The Indian converts became virtual slaves of the soldiers and Mexican politicians. The latter, led by Governor Echeandia, coveted the mission lands, which they and their successors finally obtained by theft and fraud.

The earthquake of 1812 caused considerable damage to the mission and buildings, but repairs and reconstruction were undertaken immediately. In 1819 there were 1,080 neophytes enrolled and in spite of military and political oppression, San Fernando Rey was in a prosperous state.

Preparatory to seizing the missions, Echeandia demanded from Fr. Ibarra in 1827 an inventory of all lands and property and that inventory showed, among other things, that the mission possessed 6,000 head of cattle and 8,000 sheep. In that year, Echeandia announced a plan to make San Fernando Rey a pueblo, emancipate the Indians and designate the missionary in charge as pastor of the natives. He failed in this.

Four years later Manuel Victoria was sent to California as Governor and was endeavoring to help the Franciscans missions when he was overthrown by Pio Pico and his followers, including Echeandia, and on August 9, 1834, Jose Figueroa, who had become governor, issued his decree confiscating all California missions. In October of that year, Lieutenant Antonio de Valle was directed by the governor to take charge of San Fernando Rey as a paid administrator. His inventory valued the mission and its holdings at $41,714.

Ill from grief and heartbroken, Father Ibarra, probably out of his mind as a result of his sorrows, fled from San Fernando to Sonora, Mexico, in June, 1835, unable to remain and see the complete destruction of all his years of toil. With him went Father Estenaga of Mission San Gabriel, who had undergone similar treatment at the hands of the politicos. Their desertion was akin to apostasy from their Order, but Fr. Narciso Duran, the Commissary Prefect, understood their motives and forgave them. Father Ibarra returned to San Fernando in October, 1836, and Fr. Estenaga went back to San Gabriel. Father Ibarra died, broken in spirit, at San Diego.

San Fernando struggled along under various political regimes until December 5, 1845, when Governor Pico "leased" the mission and lands to his brother, Andres Pico, and to Juan Manso at a yearly rental of $1,120. The following year he sold the mission to Eulogio Celis for $14.000.

As was the case with the other missions, American occupation put an end to Pico and his ilk and on May 31, 1862 President Abraham Lincoln returned San Fernando Rey to Catholic church.

Restoration of this old mission, which begun in 1897, bv the Landmark club has made of it one of Calfornia's beauty spots. Here is beautiful Brand Park, the land for which was presented to the city of Los Angeles by the Mission Land Company in 1920. The original star-shaped fountain built more than a century ago by the Indians under direction of the padres was given in 1922 to the park by L. C. Brand, who had it removed from the old mission fields. Here also is "Memory Garden" in which are olive trees dedicated to the famous men who took part in the conquest of California and pepper trees raised from seed gathered from the aged trees planted at Mission San Luis Rey. The Oblate Fathers took charge of San Fernando Rey in August 1923, erected a church for Mexicans in 1925 and established there a school.

Next—Mission San Buenaventura.

LIEUT. AGNEW TELLS OF NAVAL TRAINING STATION

Vice president J. D. Watson of Ocean Beach Kiwanis presided Wednesday with Ed. E. Follin as chairman of the day's program.

Mr. Follin's speaker was Lieut. Agnew of the Naval Training Station who said the institution was a very valuable addition to this section, that it had accomodations for 15,000 recruits and was a busy place.

Only the very best of young manhood is accepted and there these recruits are given three months of intensive training before months of sed on to the navy ships for further service. The average age of the recruit is 18½ years and the outlook is considered as better than average for youngsters, compared with most lines of endeavor. He gave his listeners an interesting picture of the routine the recruit goes thru and said that interested citizens and parents were always welcome to come to their reviews, held on a Thursday afternoon.

The speaker also said he was a nephew of Mr. Follin, an omission of which fact, had been made in his introduction.

San Diego's Naval Training station, established in 1923, is one of three conducted in the whole U.S.A. and these are given credit for bringing the Navy to a higher standard as the years go by.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"Clairvoyance and Other Psychic Powers: Are They Reliable" will be the topic of Abbott Clark's address at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, at 3 p.m. Sunday, July 5. He will explain what is necessary to qualify one to use such occult powers, and wherein the tests are very difficult. He will also explain thought-transference, levitation, mediumship, clairaudience, automatic writing, and give the Theosophical interpretation of these and other little known powers that are possible of attainment. There is no doubt that new and, to many, strange powers, generally known as psychic powers, are developing in a rapidly growing number of people, and it is necessary that all should understand what these are, so as to recognise the true from the false. The audience is invited to participate in the general discussion following the lecture.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" is the subject of the Lesson - Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The First Commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is the Golden Text.

One of the Bible citations in the Lesson - Sermon presents these verses from Luke: "And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God."

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the statement from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, "The Christian Scientist has enlisted to lessen evil, disease, and death; and he will overcome them by understanding their nothingness and the allness of God, or good."

Revised Guffey Coal Bill Is Passed—Republicans Map Campaign Strategy—England Abandons Anti-Italian Trade Sanctions.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

LAST minute passage of important legislation marked the closing sessions of congress before adjournment for the summer.

The house, by a vote of 161 to 90, passed the revised version of the Guffey bill to restore federal control of soft coal production, invalidated by the Supreme court. It passed the measure on to the senate.

Observers pointed out that this was the quickest repair job on a Supreme court decision that the New Deal has thus far achieved. The new bill eliminates provisions governing working hours and wages which the court held invalid.

It retains, however, two features which the court neither approved nor disapproved: 1—The granting to a national bituminous coal commission authority to fix prices and approve marketing agreements. 2—The imposition of a tax on the production of coal. The tax feature has been altered somewhat from the original bill. Instead of a flat 15 per cent tax on coal production, it calls for an outright excise levy of 1½ per cent on all soft coal, plus a 13½ per cent tax on coal in interstate commerce.

The house, likewise, adopted the two billion, 360 million dollar relief and deficiency bill. At the same time, it killed two other measures. One was for the appropriation of funds to complete the $150,000,000 Florida ship canal, which had been approved by the senate. The other was the anti-lobby bill sponsored by Senator Black of Alabama. As presented to the house it would have forced the registration of lobbyists, including those appearing before congress and before government departments. It would also have required information on contributions for lobbying purposes and payments made to lobbyists.

The senate by a vote of 42 to 24 passed the Wagner bill providing for a $460,000,000 program to encourage low cost housing construction. The bill would set up a federal housing authority to administer the act.

DEATH "in the harness" came to Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, dean of the senate, who had represented Florida in the upper house for the last quarter of a century. He died suddenly at his home in Washington. Senator Fletcher, a strong supporter of the Roosevelt administration although he was considered a conservative, was chairman of the banking and currency committee which bore the brunt of the task involved in the currency reform legislation and the banking act of 1935.

Sen. Fletcher

President Roosevelt, in a statement eulogizing the senator, said "the country has lost an able and conscientious servant in the death of Senator Fletcher." He declared the Floridian "was ever actuated by motives of high patriotism and unselfish devotion to the public welfare."

The death of Senator Fletcher followed closely the passing of Senator Park Trammel of Florida and the death of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee.

Senator Fletcher was born in Sumter county, Georgia, January 6, 1859. He was graduated from Vanderbilt university in 1880 and began the practice of law in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1881. He was elected to the United States senate in 1908 and had been renominated and re-elected in each subsequent term.

While no movement had been undertaken to select his successor as chairman of the important banking and currency committee, it was felt in Washington circles that Senator Carter Glass, senate veteran, Virginia Democrat, wartime secretary of the treasury and staunch gold standard advocate, was in line for the post. Although a critic of some of President's policies, Senator Glass has never gone far off the reservation.

A SEMI-ANNUAL checkup revealed that 10 debtor nations had notified the State department that they would default on their indebtedness to the United States. Included among these nations are: Great Britain, France, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Finland alone promised to pay. Belgium and Hungary had not yet replied to the State department's notice that an installment on their war debt was due.

While the present debt payment was being passed, in informed circles it is regarded that some basis of settlement will be sought by the European debtor nations in the near future. Increasing possibility of war in Europe, it is believed, will induce these nations to repair their credit situation in the United States.

SIX red-robed judges of Canada's Supreme court declared two of the Dominion's eight "social reform" laws unconstitutional, decided that two others were valid, one partly valid and returned tie verdicts on the other three.

The two major laws declared unconstitutional were the National Products Marketing Act, similar in some respects to the nullified American NRA and the Employment and Social Insurance Act, proposing a compulsory contributory employment insurance system. The laws were passed in 1934 and 1935 under the Conservative government then headed by Premier Bennett.

Declared valid were the Unfair Business Practices Act and the Farmers and Creditors Arrangement Act. The judges decided that the Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act was partly valid. They reached a tie verdict on the Minimum Wages Act, the Limitations of Hours of Work Act and the Weekly Day of Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act.

IN TOPEKA, Kan., Gov. Alfred M. Landon, Republican nominee for the Presidency, met Col. Frank Knox, Vice Presidential nominee, and Chairman John Hamilton and members of the executive committee of the Republican national committee to make plans for the coming campaign. Speaking itineraries for Governor Landon and Colonel Knox were discussed as well as other campaign strategy.

John Hamilton

Youth is definitely represented in the reorganized personnel of the executive committee which will chart the Republican course. Hamilton, the new chairman, is forty-four. The youngest member, Robert P. Burroughs of Manchester, N. H., is thirty-six. Seven new members attended the meeting, including Burroughs; Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., North Attleboro, Mass.; J. Will. Taylor, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. Horace Sayre, Ardmore, Okla.; Mrs. John Wyeth, St. Joseph, Mo.; Ezra Whitla, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; and Earl Warren, Oakland, Calif. Members returned to the committee are: Charles D. Hilles, New York; Harrison E. Spangler, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; R. B. Creager, Brownsville, Texas; Mrs. Bertha Baur, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, Newport, R. I.; Walter S. Hallahan, Charleston, W. Va.; and George Ball, Muncie, Ind.

In the reorganization of the committee, Hamilton traded posts with Henry P. Fletcher, who took over the job of counsel for the committee. C. B. Goodspeed of Chicago succeeded George F. Getz as treasurer. The other committee officers include four vice chairmen: Ralph E. Williams, Oregon; J. Henry Roraback, Connecticut; Mrs. John E. Hillman, Colorado; and Mrs. James Worthington, Pennsylvania.

DANGERS of civil war in China and an armed intervention by Japan were lessened somewhat by reports that Gen. Li Tsung-jen, military overlord of Kwangsi province, and his supporters had decided to yield to the superior strength of the Nanking central government, of which Chiang Kai-shek is the generalissimo. The rebellious chieftains of Kwangsi had been coupling their agitations against General Chiang with warlike demonstrations against the Japanese. Tokyo has demanded in no uncertain terms that the anti-Japanese activities throughout China be suppressed.

DEFINITE abandonment of Britain's trade sanctions against Italy and advocacy of their official removal by the League of Nations was decided upon by the British cabinet, under the presidency of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. This action of the cabinet had been expected for some time, following the failure of the sanctions to halt Italy's progress in the conquest of Ethiopia.

Anthony Eden

It was expected that Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, would go to Geneva to attend the league meeting and urge abolition of league sanctions against Italy. Dispatches from Paris indicated French support of the British program.

The cabinet was also reported to have formulated a program regarding Germany and the reformation of the league which may call for continued pressure on Reichsfuehrer Hitler to use his power and influence to promote European peace.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING is not optimistic concerning world peace. Addressing the graduating class at the United States Military academy on the fiftieth anniversary of his own graduation, the general said "no one can tell when we shall again need our armies." He continued: "The situation in the world today is far from reassuring. None can foresee the effect upon us of another world catastrophe. Loyal citizens cannot shut their eyes to the possibility of war. They owe it to all that is sacred to make ample preparation against an evil day."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT returned to Washington from his tour through six western states and, though he was rather tired, he hoped to run up to New London, Conn., for the Yale-Harvard boat race. That depended on the congressional situation. He had to deal with the lawmakers who were all tangled up in the controversy over the tax bill, and also to complete his speech of acceptance to be delivered at Philadelphia on June 27.

President Roosevelt

The final speech of Mr. Roosevelt's trip was delivered at Vincennes, Ind., where he dedicated the handsome memorial to George Rogers Clark. He paid eloquent tribute to that conqueror of the Northwest, and found occasion to appeal for support of his own program. Said he:

"In his (Clark's) day among the pioneers there were jumpers of land claims and those who sought to swindle their neighbors though they were poor in this world's goods and lived in sparsely settled communities. Today among our teeming millions there still are those who by dishonorable means seek to obtain the possessions of their unwary neighbors.

"Our modern civilization must constantly protect itself against moral defectives whose objectives are the same but whose methods are more subtle than their prototypes of a century and a half ago. We do not change our form of free government when we arm ourselves with new weapons against new devices of crime and cupidity."

In a series of rhetorical questions the President defended the AAA subsidies to farmers, soil conservation, reforestation, and preservation of wild life.

From Vincennes Mr. Roosevelt went to Hodgenville, Ky., for a brief visit to Lincoln's birthplace, and then his train carried him back to Washington.

IN A secret consistory Pope Pius XI raised to the rank of cardinal two of his old friends, Giovanni Mercati and Eugenio Tisserant. Twenty-seven cardinals were present at the ceremony, among them being Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia.

During the consistory the pope formally proclaimed appointments of three American and two Canadian bishops. They were Msgr. George L. Leech, bishop of Harrisburg, Pa.; Msgr. Hugh L. Lamb, auxiliary bishop to Cardinal Dougherty, Msgr. William Adrian, Nashville, Tenn.; Msgr. Francis Carrol, Calgary, Alta, and Msgr. Patrick Bray, St. John.

JUST as his office was about to expire, Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of transportation, submitted a report in which he proposed a lot of reforms by which the railroads might win back the business they have lost to the truck and the automobile. Among his suggestions are lower fares, lighter weight, and speedier cars, use of busses and trucks by the railroads to meet competition and consolidation of terminals and other facilities.

J. B. Eastman

He also advised the development of a nation-wide "container" service in the movement of freight by railway, highway and water, predicting that this would save millions of dollars in the handling of present freight and would create much new business. The containers are now used in a limited manner in some localities and industries.

Eastman recommended a "searching examination and thorough overhauling" of railroad pullman service, and a plan of operation under which the Pullman company would own and operate the cars and railroads, leasing them and retaining the entire revenue from the sleeping and parlor car service.

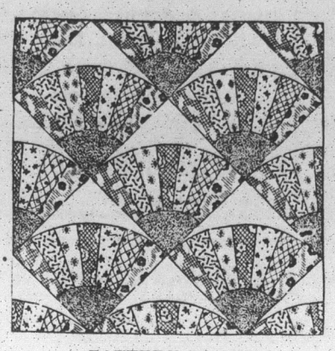

FOUR years ago Senator George Norris of Nebraska, independent Republican, warmly supported Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency, and he now announces that he will again back the Democratic ticket. He urges his countrymen "to forget partisanship and come to the support of the man who more than any other man in recent years has stood for the welfare of the common people."

The senator said the Cleveland convention "nominated a man for President whose greatest asset is that nobody knows him and nobody knows what he stands for. It does not necessarily follow from this that the nominee is not a good man. But it does mean that if he will not take orders from the undisclosed bosses who made him, then these eminent gentlemen have been deceived."

RUSSIA proposes to establish what its rulers assert will be the only real democracy in the world. A new constitution, to be promulgated next fall, has been drawn up under the direction of Josef Stalin, the dictator, and will be acted on by the all-union congress of soviets on November 25. This document guarantees protection for private property, suffrage for all citizens more than eighteen years old, regardless of race, sex, religious belief, and previous activities or property ownership. The communist party will be retained as the only recognized political organization.

There are to be two legislative bodies, the council of the union, elected by the people, and the council of nationalities, selected by the present indirect system. These two bodies will elect a board of 31 officials to run the government.

He was eighty when, with all other slaves, he received his freedom in the year 1864, and after that he lived for thirty-six years, dying in 1901 at the age of 116. He had five wives, marrying the last when he was just over eighty, and by her he had thirteen children. In all, his children numbered either fifty-nine or sixty. Jules Garnier is back at his home, 4959 Brighton avenue, after living two months in San Diego, recovering from a narrow escape in the ocean, when he was carried out by a high tide while watching the breakers. He is past 80 and with eye sight not too good, he ventured too close to rough water, being washed upon a rock he clung there until rescued by Mr. Perrine of the Silver Spray hotel. Mrs. Garnier, who suffered a stroke many months ago, has been released from the hospital and is receiving care in a private home.

AMERICANA

By
Ellsworth Floyd Whalen

Will Durant, one of America's foremost philosophers, advocates using "every device of taxation and every avenue of education to discourage fertility among the incompetent and encourage it among the able." An analysis of Durant's philosophy aims to teach us that American civilization may collapse unless the right type of young citizen is brought into the world with a will to accomplish something progressive, rather than living just to exist.

One thing worth remembering, no matter who advocates it, there are millions of young Americans who have "a will to accomplish something progressive," but they are without a decent opportunity to get started on the right path. Nevertheless; our educational institutions are turning out high school and college graduates by the thousands every six months, and these leaders of tomorrow can only be followers of today: today's unstable economic period of civilization.

In Los Angeles, California, the liquor situation is evidently a credit to nobody. Leon M. Donihue, chairman of the assembly committee investigating State liquor control affairs, said that the Los Angeles hearings showed "A critically unhealthy and increasingly dangerous situation in liquor law administration under the State board of Equalization."

With hard liquors selling at cheap prices, it is little wonder that dangerous situations are bound to interfere with the best interest of society and the common morale of our people. Huge luxury taxes on hard liquors combined with State supervision and ownership of all horse racing plants would soon clear up California's budget deficiency and leave a favorable balance in the treasury. Gambling and drinking will never create nor foster good Americanism, and governments working through democracy to legalize such procedures, merely erect structural weaknesses within their system of organization. However; since the voters of California "simply had to have these liberties," as evidenced by their vote at the polls, they may now have the pleasure of watching hard-earned laborer's money being played on the ponies and keeping the liquor corporations prosperous.

Speaking before the American Physiotherapy Association, Dr. Rodney Atsatt says that "fever is proving to be one of the greatest therapeutics aids in the treatment of disease." Many physicians who formerly attempted to reduce fevers are now letting the fever run its course in the patient as nature's own method of burning out germs.

The medical profession never rests in its efforts to make our human existence a more comfortable one. American physicians have progressed well in their studies of cancer, and the time may not be far off when this most dreaded of all diseases will have a permanent cure.

Successful experiments have been carried out with airplanes towing gliders. One airplane with a powerful engine can tow from three to six gliders through the air. Picture such an aerial train flying through the air with gliders being released from the train as their respective airports are reached and gliding safely down with their cargo of mail and express. Many people are probably laughing today at the sky-train idea: do not be surprised if Germany becomes the first nation to make the sky-train a reality in a commercial sense. At least one American is interested in the idea, he is Captain Frank Hawks, Hawks was towed in his glider from San Diego to New York by an airplane with no trouble whatsoever.

official program for the inauguration of the great Pan American Highway in El Universal, one of Mexico City's leading newspapers, this writer cannot but help admire the courageous spirit of the Mexican Government in carrying to a successful completion, one of the world's most difficult highways to construct. The celebration of the Pan American Highway completion wiill last from July 1 to July 4 inclusive with United States and Mexican government officials participating. International understanding and goodwill should become improved with this new connecting-link between the United States and Mexico which will greatly facilitate inter-travel over the boundary lines of both nations.
